BANKERS OPTIMISTIC

Money for Investment Is Still Plentiful.

SITUATION TENSE IN EUROPE

London, Paris, and Berlin Markets as Uneasy as that of New York.
Business Interests Bound to Suffer for Misdeeds of Money Kings—Much Depends on President's Policy.

Talks yesterday with a number of the most prominent bankers in Washington developed some interesting facts relative to the money situation, as it affects business in this city.

These talks grew out of complaints heard from a few that some business men are finding it difficult to obtain loans with which to carry on their affairs. It was stated that money, while not exactly plentiful, is obtainable from the banks in such quantities as are needed, and at rates not considered exorbitant. One banker said that all the needs of depositors and patrons of his bank were being taken care of, and he had not heard of an instance where a business man of good credit had been turned away when he presented good security for his loans.

Bankers Are Optimistic.

The president of one of the national banks said there was a big call for money this month. Business, he said, was dull, and many business men were borrowing largely to tide them over until fall. This, he said, was the worst time of the year for business, and he was sure that the situation, locally, was any worse than is usually the case in August. Possibly there was more outlay for improvements and what might be called enlargements than in former years, but so far as the clients of his bank were concerned, they were being supplied with all the money required in legitimate enterprise. He said his bank was not lending for speculative purposes, and had turned down some requests for loans of this character. Bankers in general were most optimistic.

Good Credit Is All.

Another banker official interviewed stated that nobody with good credit or good security was being turned away. He said there were some men in business in Washington with small capital, who in the summer time want more money than they ought to have, and the resources at command. Such persons probably are finding it difficult to obtain such loans as they desire, but he declared that the banks and the trust companies were all making big loans at rates that have regularly prevailed through the times of prosperity.

The fact cannot be lost sight of that in Great Britain, France, Germany, and Belgium, conditions exist which may be called financial crisis, without any stretch of imagination. In this country, financiers talk as if the chief pressure were here, and declare that it is all due to the attack of the government upon corporate enterprises. It is a fact, however, that the money crisis is acute in all the European centers as in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Chicago. It cannot be that the onslaught against corporations here in any way affects the situation abroad, and yet there is the same trouble there.

An International Crisis.

This fact led the Wall Street Journal yesterday to remark as follows:

"The financial crisis is an international one. It is not confined to the United States, and as a matter of fact is more acute abroad than here. The policy of the administration toward the corporations in the United States has had nothing to do with the raising of interest abroad, with the depression in console and other foreign government bonds, and with the collapse of the foreign stock markets. The great fundamental and universal fact of the financial situation at this time is the lack of capital with which to conduct the enterprises of the world."

Causes of the Stringency.

"Many things have contributed to bring about this international stringency. The war in Europe, the disaster of the earthquake in Japan, the waste of extravagance, the waste of the speculation in real estate, and in securities, together with the tremendous rapidity with which the work of developing the resources of the world has been going on for the last ten years, have coupled with the stimulus of the great gold production, brought about this situation. The remedy for this is not to be found at Washington, or at London, or at Berlin, or at Paris. Governments may aid or may check the work of the great gold production, but that work must be performed by the markets themselves, which are now in a fair way of doing so."

Finds Rockefeller Wrong.

The Journal then discusses the relation of the administration to the situation here, quoting the words of Mr. Rockefeller, in which he declared that the policy of the administration means "disaster to the country, financial depression, and financial chaos." The Journal concludes that while it cannot be expected that the President should change his policy, he should do all in his power to ameliorate the blow which must inevitably fall upon business interests for the misdeeds of the predatory heads of the great corporations.

Roosevelt's "Highest Duty."

"It would seem as if it were now the highest duty of the President and his advisers to do everything they can to allay excitement, to stamp out hysteria, and to focus the attention of the people upon the fundamental requirement—the maintenance of order and credit," says the Journal, in summing up the situation. Complaints of stringency in the money market are not treated seriously by Treasury Department officials. They say there is no sign of distress in the financial sky.

MRS. EDDY READILY ANSWERS QUESTIONS

times fatigued by it, and yet these things are indispensable, and I regard them as sacred.

Q.—Did you acquire all this property here at the outset, or did you acquire it gradually?

A.—I purchased it at the outset, and suggested every construction and arrangement of my grounds throughout, and I still adhere to it.

Q.—How many acres have you?

A.—Really, I don't know the number of acres.

Aids Her Home City.

Q.—I have heard now and then that you have taken an interest in public affairs around about Concord and other places in New Hampshire; that you have given money to the city of Concord, and perhaps to other parts of the State, for highways and other institutions.

A.—Now, I had a great desire to build my native place. Am I talking too much? Q.—Did you? No, you are all interested in what you say.

Mrs. Eddy, continuing:

They asked me in Boston to remain. Jordan and Marsh, White, and other firms requested me very earnestly not to leave the city, and they said to me: "Haven't we helped you accumulate money since you have been here?" And I replied: "Haven't I helped you?" And they said: "Yes, you have, and that is why we want you to stay." Then I said: "I want to go home and help my native State a little."

Q.—And that was how long ago, Mrs. Eddy?

A.—Between eighteen and twenty years.

Q.—Did you go directly to this place then, to this spot?

A.—I did, and there was a hut there, a simple hut. I had it moved up, and I made what there is here. The house was not built by myself. It was moved from where it was built. I built the cottage, and moved that house which was then in its place here.

SKULL AND ARM FRACTURED.

William Naughton Worsted in Fight with His Brother-in-law.

As the result of a difference which he had with his brother-in-law, William Naughton, whose home is at 2020 Porter place, in New York, and who is a member of the Emergency Hospital and is in a very bad condition. The doctors say that he has a compound fracture of the skull and a broken arm, besides several lesser injuries.

From what the police have learned of the matter, Naughton and his brother-in-law, Thomas Snee, had a discussion over some domestic trouble at the former's residence, which developed into a full-fledged fight.

In the midst of the battle, the police say, Snee sailed forth with a shoe-mallet and struck Naughton on the head. At the Emergency Hospital, last night it was stated that although Naughton's injuries were serious, he will probably recover.

Snee was arrested shortly after the fight, and was taken to the Police Court, Dunham and carried to the Eighth Precinct station, where he was charged with assault.

TOWERS DEFEATS LUDLOW.

North Capitol Downs Virginia Avenue in Playground Tourney.

There were two tournaments held under the auspices of the Washington Playground Association yesterday. Towers defeated Ludlow, 96 to 51, and North Capitol downing Virginia Avenue, 82 to 67.

The defeat of the Virginia Avenue children is the first that they have suffered this year, and the victory reflects great credit upon Miss Baker and Messrs. Barker and Norton, instructors at the North Capitol street playgrounds.
